1 - Access trails were digitized from a 2003 brochure distributed by Sea Ranch Realty

Coastal access points are derived from an electronic data layer prepared from information contained in the "California Coastal Access Guide" published by the California Coastal Commission in 1981. These points were digitized by the California Coastal Conservancy in 1997. Coastal access points are displayed on MLPA Initiative maps as a means of reference and are not intended to exhaustively represent all access points in California. Printed maps are not a representation of all available data. More detailed access point information for specific regions of the coast, where available, are used in the planning process.
