

Autumn Bremer
Pacific Rim Seafood, Inc. & Fort Bragg Marine, Inc.
32310 North Harbor Dr
Fort Bragg, CA 95437
artrumper@gmail.com
(707) 962-0877 or (707) 362-6344

I am the owner of Fort Bragg Marine, Inc., and Pacific Rim Seafood, Inc., both of these businesses rely on the ocean to operate on a daily basis. I have been an owner of these companies since 2007.

My family moved to Fort Bragg when I was four years old from Southern California to dive sea urchins. I have grown up on and around the ocean. In 2000 I moved to San Diego to attend college where I received a BA in Political Science with a minor in Business Administration. During the summers I would come home to help in the family fishing business. I moved back to Fort Bragg in 2005 and worked for the law office of Hogan & Stickel, Inc., as a legal secretary while still helping out at the business on my off time. In 2007 I had the opportunity to buy part of our family business to become an owner of the two above mentioned companies. 2007-2008 I was the North Coast processor representative for the California Sea Urchin Commission.

Since 2007 I have been involved daily in the commercial and sport fishing communities of Fort Bragg. I understand how important it is to properly manage our natural resources so that they will be around for future generations. In the hope that they too can stay in the community they were raised in and have the option to have a career that involves our ocean. I have been following the MLPA process in the Central and South Coast regions and have been in contact with regional stakeholders from those areas during the process. While running our two businesses and starting up a new business I have had to face daily challenges that have greatly developed my ability to manage tasks and deal with conflict. I run a business with approximately 50 employees and doing that has taught me how to effectively deal with people when they have differing of opinions from myself or other employees.

I have several people in my company that are capable of running my business in the times that I will be away while serving on the regional stakeholder group. If I am chosen for this position I will answer directly to the local fishing community and I will also be available to any others in the community who may have questions or information pertinent to the MLPA process.

I believe I would be a good candidate for the regional stakeholder group because I can contribute to the group with my extensive knowledge base including the North Coast fishing community, the Fort Bragg business community, and my knowledge gained by my degrees in business and political science.

Email: artrumper@gmail.com

Autumn Bremer is an owner of Fort Bragg Marine, Inc., and Pacific Rim Seafood, Inc., both of which rely on the ocean to operate on a daily basis. She has been an owner of these companies since 2007.

Autumn's family moved to Fort Bragg from Southern California when she was four years old to dive for sea urchins. She has grown up on and around the ocean. In 2000, she moved to San Diego to attend college, where she received a BA in Political Science with a minor in Business Administration. During the summers, she would come home to help in the family fishing business. Autumn moved back to Fort Bragg in 2005 and worked for the law office of Hogan & Stickel, Inc., as a legal secretary while still helping out at the business during off time. In 2007, she had the opportunity to buy part of the families business to become an owner of the two above-mentioned companies. In 2007-2008, Autumn was the North Coast processor representative for the California Sea Urchin Commission.

Since 2007, Autumn has been involved in the commercial and sport fishing communities of Fort Bragg. She understands how important it is to properly manage our natural resources so that it will be around for future generations, in the hope that her children, too can stay in the community where they were raised and have the option of a career that involves the ocean. She has followed the MLPA process in the North Central and South Coast regions and has been in contact with regional stakeholders from those areas during the process. While running two businesses and starting up a new business, she has had to face daily challenges that have greatly developed her ability to manage tasks and deal with conflict. Running a business with approximately 50 employees has taught her how to effectively deal with people when they have opinions different from her own or other employees.

There are others in her company capable of handling her business operations during the times she will be away to serve on the regional stakeholders' group. If chosen for this position, she will answer directly to the local fishing community and will also be available to others in the community who may have questions or information pertinent to the MLPA process.

Autumn would be a good candidate for the regional stakeholder group because she can contribute to the group with her extensive knowledge base including the North Coast fishing community, the Fort Bragg business community, and her knowledge gained through her degrees in business and political science.